THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1916.

As revised by the shell committee, the motto seems to be "no truck or trade with the Canadians."

A "high German official" says Germany does not want Europe to be dominated by any one power. Seeing that Germany cannot be the power.

Some people in Dublin seem to be more concerned about the death of a score of rebels than about the deaths of five hundred people killed through their efforts.

From the vote at Washington on the naval estimates, Berlin seems to have convinced both Democrats and Republicans that a "secret of paper" signed by Berlin is not that can be desired in the way of guaranteeing national security.

The Dominion is putting up four and a half million dollars to relieve the financial difficulties of some branch line railways which do not make pay. When the western provinces want branch line railways they have to pledge the provincial credit to get them.

The Government ought to welcome the facts about the service arm of our soldiers wherever those facts come from. Their reply to General Alderson's letter has a tone that unpleasantly suggests that they do not want the facts which the facts are about the Ross rifle and of an adverse character.

The British Minister of War says there is not the remotest possibility of a general clash between Britain and Canada to exercise its "entire liberty of action" in face of "the new situation." It will have to justify its own conduct. Britain is not buying it off at the price of the lives of Allied soldiers.

Colonel Allison says he is sorry he did not tell General Hughes that he was getting commissions on munition contracts. It would have been better to have told him and would have made no difference to the Colonel, for the General has told Parliament the Colonel was entitled to any commissions he was getting.

The vice-president of the Imperial Munitions Board says he was struck on visiting the plants of the companies who secured contracts through Colonel Alderson with the fewest of workmen who knew another soul in the plant. Yet the explanation offered for turning down applications of Canadian manufacturers was that they did not have expert fuse-makers ready at hand.

The city's financial statement for 1915 was brought down last week, approximately five months after the council for this year was elected. The theory of the city charter is that the city is governed as nearly as practicable on the lines of a joint stock company. In this particular the analogy is by no means close. The share-holders in the city, who mostly have the annual statement in hand before electing directors for the ensuing year. If the civic financial year could be made to end so that the taxpayers would have to wait a month before the election, then when electing directors for the following year it would be a more logical arrangement, and would make for closer continuity in the carrying on of the city's business.

The Quebec Opposition is getting no better fast.

When street cars run in procession only one of them collects fares.

The position is developing that Sir Sam Hughes is to be considered a capable Minister of Militia, almost every one who has come into contact with him, from the Auditor-General at Ottawa, to General Alderson in the field, must be considered a blockhead.

A Canadian applicant for a fane contract, Colonel Carnegie, of the Royal Canadian Engineers, says "pressure was held brought to bear on him higher up" to have the contracts let in the United States. Who were the men "higher up?" And why the cause of the pressure?

Mr. Bourassa is able to spend time in Canada because other men are willing to do the heavy lifting which enables him to do it.

The name in France gave way and Henri will speedily come into the silence of discretion or the silence of a German-made grave.

Whatever his limitations, Mr. Benjamin Franklin Yankum seems to have the business sense of where and when it pays to spend money. This $200,000 loan to General Alderson in consideration of his "experience and influence," was based upon the waters that returned before "many days."

Ex-President Taft is the head of a band to reinforce peace. If the leaders have really discovered how to do that they should get busy. All the important powers in Europe, and a large part of the rest of the world, have been trying to do it for upwards of two years now, and they cannot yet claim to have succeeded.

Sir Robert Borden did well to call upon Sir Douglas Haig to say whether Canadian soldiers are to continue to fight with Ross rifles or to be re-armed. He also did well to announce the fact for the benefit of all, that he had written to the front and of the public. He would likewise have done well to put the rest of the Government's statement in General Alderson's letter in the waste basket.

In their statement the ministers have a good deal to say about the impropriety and unadvisedness of publishing General Alderson's letter at this time. What they do not say is that they did not dare to have it read in the views of General Alderson. That being what they would have said first of all if they could say it, the omission will be taken as affirmation of the report. In such cases the absence of denials amounts to admission.

As usual, in the statement regarding the publication of General Alderson's opinion, the commissioners take a fence-hanging attitude. It is, they say, unwise to say anything about the demerits of the rifle lest the enemy should learn something to his advantage. That is the same sort of thing that has always been given every attention has been called to, an oversight or an error in the management of any part of our war business. It was true on the March 20th that the commissioners spoke again in reference to fuse contracts, and very properly ridiculed out of court. It deserves no more attention from the public than it got from the commissioners.

BRITAIN UNBEATABLE. From the Toronto World (Con.)

Scold Great Britain is all means; but the British public is not so intelligent. "Brave in this war" is she? You will find that she, Calton, is up to all things in all men and women, and in some particulars, but she is not up to some of the things that she is. She is the one unbeatable factor in the Allied combination.

Had a Nervous Breakdown

Could Not Sleep or Work

Is Now Cured and Attributes Her Recovery to the Use of Dr. Chase's Medicines.

Some splendid results have been reported to me from the combined use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I am sure many have the annual statement in hand before electing directors for the ensuing year. If the civic financial year could be made to end so that the taxpayers would have to wait a month before the election, then when electing directors for the following year it would be a more logical arrangement, and would make for closer continuity in the carrying on of the city's business.

While the Kidney-Liver Pills arouse the action of liver, kidneys and heart, the Nerve Food enriches the blood vessels and keeps the heart and lungs in healthy condition. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney Pills are the best medicine for nervous breakdowns. They work together with great success.

Mr. D. H. Hillman, Butcher, Mackay's Oats: "About four years ago I was ill and run down and could not do it on account of my hand shaking so badly. My nerves were so bad that I was treated for nervous breakdown. I could not

This department does not pretend to be an authority. It will endeavor however, to answer questions sent to it by readers concerning any subject within its ability, reserving the right to ignore any question that it deems irrelevant to the questions.

For instance, every inquiry must bear the name and address of the questioner, and the name of the newspaper wanted for publication, but as an evidence of good faith.

Aluminum Polish. Aluminum Polish is sold here by how I can polish aluminum.

Mr. R. M. G. G. City. Aluminum may be polished with a paste made of alum and fine sand and water powder. This may be mixed with alcohol or water and applied with a cloth or brush in form of a piece of cheese.

I saw a statement credited to Governor General that in January 1915, Saskatchewan cleared of the last vestiges of prohibition to the effect that since prohibition came into effect in that state, a great many more saloons had opened. Is this true?

The government was that Kansas without the saloons had paid off its debts in less than a year. At the same time that man was busy working the Regals end, another man was busy working the Roasters. Roasters was engaged in the task of writing stories at Ottawa and wiring on parts of Canada. Based on these stories, the government was able to write sometimes no doubt in good faith, which had the public in mind, and the result was that in regard to Saskatchewan affairs, the government was able to write stories of these papers the rankers of fiction as absolute fact.

It is said, and it repeats, that all this was not the result of mere imagination, but the result of a liberate conspiracy hatched with the object of creating widespread public discontent with the government and party of the Dominion. The primary object was to be the Scott Government to the rescue of the Prohibitionists, the Royal Commissions failed to convict the Scott Government of any discredit upon the Liberal party as a whole and weaken it in its opposition.

This paper makes no apology for any such statement, and it repeats, that all this could be more dangerous and vicious than to have the wells of information dry up, and which the people obtain their information.

It has been the case of most Conservative papers since the Bradshaw affair, that they have been silent.

The local Tory organ sees the Bradshaw affair as a political conspiracy, and says that the Leader has endeavored to make its readers believe that the Scott Government is to blame, and the editor of the Province, Mr. H. C. St. John, says that this paper has been guilty of no such thing.

It is true, however, that some papers cast by the representative of the "synthetic oil" industry, and the Bradshaw affair has been the case of most Conservative papers since the Bradshaw affair.
